

“Maybe, yes maybe, moving on is a little tough,
but how can you live truly, without renouncing what isn't meant to be yours, while writing this, I also felt that it also imposes on me, but the difference between us being of attraction and love.

You held on, thinking it was love, as salvation,
but little did you know it never was there,
'It wasn't love'--- I said,
Because if it was, it would never happen again,
And fundamentally it should have never get lost at the first place.

Trust me, just believe me for once,
even if you did never,
when I say it wasn't love you think it was,
Definitely it would have feel different, no आश्चर्य you declare it was love.

The more manipulative I sound, the more true it is,
Because how can I tell you the lies now, when I didn't in a 1000+ years.

It is your mind- you can think he deserved better, but when the truth unveils, you will clearly see who deserved better,
A shepherd who has a definite relation and many sheep, or a person with only 1 दिल.
Do you really want the shepherd, over your self respect?

For whence I told you that character and willingness of a person matters, all that you heard was blah blah blah.
I never minded all the lies and deceptions that you made in personal or in chat, because I saw you didn't realize that I know that.

Although willing to, I will never ask you to love me,
But at least cut the string which was never connected from both sides and never meant there to be.
Don't think you made a mistake, because when you cannot see a damn attraction disguised as love, how can you see your blunder so huge, and why will you thank the universe for giving you a chance.

I will never say things such as you will regret this, because at the end of the day its your choice, does the opinion of a guy matters who lived all of this?

Maybe you wear glasses, so in the seven heavens,
at least see; who you cared about; was never your once.
You are just in the dream-- that you know him,
while your whole world collapses as you wake up.”